People with Disability Australia Disability Support for the Royal Commission Information Pack

Children with disability are known to experience higher levels of child sexual abuse than other children, yet they face many barriers in seeking to report this violence.

The Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse (the Royal Commission) provides a uniquely accessible opportunity for people with disability to tell their stories of sexual abuse as children in organisational settings. There are also many support services available, including those provided by People with Disability Australia (PWDA).

We hope that this pack will assist you in supporting or facilitating a person with disability engaging with the Royal Commission.

Disability Support for the Royal Commission

PWDA is funded by the Department of Social Services (DSS) to support the work of the Royal Commission. Our project involves individual advocacy, training, and systemic advocacy and policy work. More information, and a mailing list you can subscribe to at <http://rcsupport.pwd.org.au>.

Contents

Additional Support

Please contact PWDA on 1800 422 015 or pwd@pwd.org.au if you would like any additional resources or advocacy, or if you have questions about accessing support services.

If you would like to suggest that we send these resources to other people or organisations, please contact us.

People with Disability Australia

People with Disability Australia (PWDA) is a national disability rights, advocacy and representative organisation of and for people with all kinds of disability. We continue to work towards our vision of a socially just, accessible, and inclusive community, in which the human rights, citizenship, contribution, potential and diversity of all people with disability are recognised, respected and celebrated.
